

Musings from the priest's back porch...July-August 2025

During the summer of COVID—remember that? —I saw a picture of a sidewalk with marigolds growing in the cracks. A pre-school located near this sidewalk had the children plant seeds in the cracks. The beautiful flowers brightened the area and got me thinking. The cracks weren't particularly unsightly, but the sidewalk was bland, and abutting the sidewalk was the concrete wall of the school. The flowers broke the monotony of the tan-grey on tan-grey. I considered that the one who encouraged this was pretty clever! With fewer people wandering the streets during COVID, the flowers bloomed well and were not disturbed by the feet of passers-by.

I had scheduled the replacement of a portion of my cement sidewalk where a downspout spews its rain and melted snow and ice. A crack developed, and I had been diligent in clearing the soil and flame-killing the weeds. But not this year. I recognized that the little green leaves sprouting upward looked a lot like those on Wave-petunias. I left them alone. And now, in that nasty crack, there are numerous colorful little petunias, some portulacas flowers, and a few soon-to-be-yanked weeds! The beauty of those wayward plants makes me smile every time I go down the adjacent steps.

The cracks that appear in our lives often call us to patch them over. We then spend an extraordinary amount of time trying to clean them up and to fill them in. And we want to perfect our environment, our lives, our journeys. But sometimes, those very cracks are there as a reminder that life is never perfect, that fissures and gullies will appear when we least expect them or when we least desire them, and frequently, when we are not ready to deal with the loss of those smooth, easy, nice, firm, landscaped paths.

As we will soon experience warmer, more humid days, and sadly, longer nights, ordinary time greets the faithful with the times Jesus spent with regular, every-day folks. Though somewhat odd that we celebrate Ascension Thursday and Pentecost then roll into Ordinary Time, this stretch gives us time to see the cracks in our lives, and consider where God might be using those faults, those imperfections, and those disruptions to bring us to change our thinking, alter our visions, and consider different futures in faith, in service and in love.

May the God of All Creation bring you beauty and grace, so that you may be kind and loving to yourself, as you consider where God might be using your imperfections to beautify God's world.

Your brother in Christ.....

Tips for summer meal planning

Summertime is synonymous with BBQing and light refreshing meals. Preferably one that takes little time to make and doesn't heat up the kitchen. This may include fresh healthy salads and cooking on the grill.

Prep in advance by chopping vegetables, marinating meat and prepping sauces ahead of time to streamline cooking.

Keep cooking simple by choosing quick and easy recipes that allow more time spent outdoors doing what you enjoy.

Use seasonal produce by taking advantage of fresh fruits and vegetables. Support local farmers and enjoy fresh, tasty food grown close to home.

Stay hydrated by not forgetting to drink on those busy family days. Refreshing beverages like lemonade or fruit infused water can help you keep drinking throughout those hot days.
